- Height from TOP of the veil to waist of jacket.
- Chest is measured in circumference underarm.
- Arm is measured from should to wrist.
- Waist size is the maximum amount the elastic around the bottom to the jacket will allow the waist area to expand. Typically the un-stretched waist length is about ½ the stretched length which keeps the waist area snug to your body to prevent bees from entering.

Choosing the Correct Size:

SUITS AND JACKETS. The measurements in the Tables should be used as guide to selecting the correct size of garment for you. Remember you should wear the protective clothing over other clothing to ensure full protection. Therefore, the Waist measurement of the protective clothing should not be the measurement you normally use for selecting trousers. Add at least a couple of inches to your normal size to allow for any trousers worn underneath. Better still, measure your waist and chest etc., whilst wearing clothes and then add a bit for comfort. Finally, we strongly recommend you choose a size a shade on the large size to ensure comfort and maximum protection.

Height – If the jacket is too small for your height the hat brim will pulled down if you look up. Always go for a size a little on the large size if possible.
